

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS PLAN TRAININGS

In anticipation of future competitive funding rounds, community representatives are encouraged to attend CIP training, featuring content developed by the Michigan Association of Planning (MAP).

Do you know what the Planning Enabling Act says about the Capital Improvement Program (CIP)? Do you know what should be included and how often it should be updated? This program explains, from start to finish, everything you need to know to prepare and adopt a CIP, including: who should be involved in the CIP process; the accounting and budgetary requirements of a CIP; how to tie the program into your infrastructure; and how to handle controversial topics.

Trainings conducted by Jill Bahm and Mike Kozak with Giffels Webster. Jill Bahm is a principal planner with Giffels Webster and has worked as a planning consultant since 2008. She has a broad planning background that includes work in both the public and private sector. Jill's experience as a city planner and DDA executive director, combined with her commercial real estate experience, marketing and promotional skills, allows her the opportunity to assist clients with a variety of projects. Mike Kozak has over 15 years of civil engineering experience and is a partner at Giffels Webster working on a variety of municipal, residential and commercial projects. His knowledge of both the constraints of private developments and stringent requirements of municipal standards provides a unique perspective for both types of clientele. Mike has provided municipal engineering and plan review services to a variety of municipalities, as well as design services for an array of commercial, residential and institutional projects.

Trainings are being offered at no cost; however if you sign up and cannot make it to the training, please email rrc@michigan.org to avoid a $50 cancellation fee.

Please contact rrc@michigan.org with questions.
